ROMANCE OF A LEG.

By S. HUNTER HALSEY.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

Love cannot be expressed by language. It is something to be felt, but not spoken. The old, the middle aged, the young may experience it. It is not confined to any class. It is serious, pathetic, yet there are times when it is ridiculous.

When Mary Ann, who had served us faithfully for twenty years, announced that she was about to be married to Peter, the hired farm hand, we were astonished. Never had we seen the couple spooning or mooning. On the contrary, we had observed what we considered evidence of animosity. They were continually making complaints of each other. But we knew Mary Ann was a good woman, and we had little interest in Peter, for he was with us only for the harvest season.

"How long, Mary Ann," we asked, "have you and Peter been engaged?"

"Since yesterday at sunset."

"And had you thought much about marrying before that?"

"I had and I hadn't," replied Mary Ann. "That was because I didn't know what Peter was a-going to do. But a week ago when I gave him a piece of pie I had made and he said, 'Mary Ann, have you the receipt for it, so that if you should leave the farm you could make it without the cookbook?' I knew there was meaning in the observation. And when I said, 'Never fear, I have the receipt firm in my hand,' I saw by the look in his eye it wouldn't be long before he'd ask me."

"One would suppose that in such a genuine case the course of true love would run smooth, but it didn't. Peter walked with a humping gait. Being a woman, I am blessed with woman's traits, including animosity. 'Mary Ann,' I said to her one day, 'what makes Peter walk so queerly?'"

"I'm sure I don't know," was the reply.

"Oh," I added, "I supposed you would know, of course."

From that time I noticed there was something wrong between the lovers. I asked Mary Ann about it. "It's the leg," she said. "I asked him. He said there was something on his mind about it. I begged him to confess, but he wouldn't and he wouldn't, till at last I lost patience with him."

"You shouldn't have done that," I replied. "We women don't need to lose our patience with men. We have only to keep at them and they are sure to come out at last. They are not as enduring as we. But it would not be prudent for you to marry Peter with a secret between you and him. It may be there is a story connected with his limp. He may have been doing something unlawful and got caught in a trap."

"I've thought that myself," said Mary Ann, a pained expression crossing her face.

After this the relations between Peter and Mary Ann went from bad to worse. I said nothing more to her, for

I knew that when a woman makes up her mind to learn a secret she'll know it in time. I noticed a hounded look on Peter's face, but I did not realize the depth of his tribulation. If there was nothing disgraceful connected with his halting walk, why should he not tell? If there was, Mary Ann would best be rid of him.

One morning I was standing on the porch looking down toward the railroad which runs past the other end of the apple orchard. The express was due in a few minutes, and I always liked to see it go by. There is something about a passing train to wake us country people from our accustomed lethargy. Presently I heard a distant whistle and a moment later saw Peter walking briskly as his halt would permit toward the track. He climbed the fence dividing it from the farm, dragging his stiff leg over after him and stood between the rails. At that moment the train shot out of the wood. I heard a succession of sharp whistles and saw Peter, instead of getting out of the train's way, lie down on the ties. I shrieked and covered my eyes with my hands, but before shutting out my vision caught a glimpse of Mary Ann wildly running toward the would be suicide.

I heard the train stop, a hissing of steam and a confusion of voices. One of the farm hands came along, and when I asked him if Peter had been killed he told me that he would probably die, since he had lost a leg. He had tried to get off the track at the last moment and had removed all of his body except one leg, which had been crushed under the wheels.

"Oh, that leg!" I groaned. "I've been sure it would ruin Mary Ann's happiness. I hope he's lost the one that has been the cause of the trouble."

I saw an opening in a knot of people crowding around something beside the train, and two men emerged carrying another on a stretcher. Mary Ann walking beside them wringing her hands. They were bringing Peter to the house. When they came to where I was standing and Mary Ann saw me she wailed:

"It's the leg! I knew there was bad luck in it. Oh, why couldn't I leave it alone?"

Later the doctor came out of the house to the porch where I was comforting Mary Ann as best I could. "Tell us quick!" I cried. "Will he live?"

"He's lost a leg," he replied, "but it's a wooden one, and he only suffers from the shock."

Mary Ann and I looked at each other. Then Mary Ann flew into the house to make her lover happy.

DENIES SHE IS A BLACKMAILER

Mrs. Stewart or Ford, the Woman in the Warriner Case

SAYS NEVER GOT A DOLLAR

She Blames Another Woman—Defies Big Four Officials to Arrest Her—Constables Serve Writ on Her.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 11.—With the shortage mounting higher as further penetration is made into the tangled affairs of the Big Four railroad's financial department, experts in charge of the examination yesterday probed into the matter of securities and bond issues, which came under the charge of Charles L. Warriner, deposed treasurer, who is accused of responsibility for a defalcation amounting to $643,000 of the company's funds.

Inasmuch as the shortage has grown in a few days from what was supposed to be about $100,000 to $643,000, still further developments along this line would not be surprising to those who are apparently in close touch with the affairs of the railroad company.

It is learned that Warriner, in his statement to his superiors, told them that when he came here from the Cleveland office of his company, he brought with him a shortage of $30,000 in his accounts at Cleveland.

His downfall, he states, dates from then, he having covered the shortage only to fall into the clutches of the man who, he alleges, has blackmailed him ever since. The shortage continued to grow until it was soon swelled to $200,000 before he realized his position.

From a high official source, it is learned that the first intimation of the impending scandal in the office of the local treasurer came through a Chicago woman, who, it is alleged, had been sharing in the ill-gotten spoils and whose income had been shut off.

At first the statement of the woman was not credited and Melville E. Gills, chairman of the board of the Big Four, declared yesterday that for several days it was almost impossible for him to believe that there could be anything wrong with Warriner, notwithstanding a hasty examination made by some of the higher officials of the company had brought to light the first facts of the shortage.

Through the issuance of attachment papers intended to recover certain goods sold to her by a department store in this city, the presence was revealed yesterday in a fashionable apartment house of the woman who has been mentioned by Warriner as one of his alleged blackmailers. The woman who is well known in this city and in Chicago, where she figures in a number of affairs, it is said, has been occupying the present apartments for only a few days. Kept there a virtual prisoner since the developments in connection with the Big Four shortage, her identity, it is understood, was not known to other occupants of the place until yesterday.

The woman's name is Mrs. Jeannette Stewart and she is also known as Mrs. Ford. She broke a long silence yesterday and gave out an authorized statement.

"I never blackmailed Charley Warriner out of a dollar," were her first words, as she sobbingly declared she "would never again confide in a woman friend," who, she declares, is responsible for much of the notoriety she has attained in the case.

"This woman," said Mrs. Stewart, "I took into my flat, and she occupied it while I was out of town. I thought she was my friend."

The railroad officials yesterday denied emphatically that they had grounds for suspecting that the Warriner alleged shortage may go as high as two million dollars and asserted their belief that the maximum had been reached in the sum named, $643,000.

DEVOTED TO HER HUSBAND.

Marietta Wolf Thus Describes Attitude of Madame Steinheil.

Paris, Nov. 11.—No servant ever fought more loyally for her mistress than did Marietta Wolf, the cook in the Steinheil household, when called yesterday as a witness in the trial of Madame Steinheil for the murder of her husband and stepmother.

When the judge had led her through a labyrinth of contradictory statements, he suddenly charged the witness with this abstract from her original deposition:

"When Madame Steinheil learned that her husband was dead, she ejaculated: 'At last I am free.'"

Without the least hesitation the servant replied:

"No, I have been misquoted. What Madame said was, 'At last I am alone.' The witness insisted that the wife was devoted to her artist husband.

"Hark, the herald angels sing," Beethoven's Pills are just the thing. "Peace on earth and mercy mild," Two for man and one for child.

A great many years ago, some wag conceived this proverb, but its happy jingle, along with the sober truth it suggests, has made this verse a byword with millions of people. It illustrates the great popularity in which Beethoven's Pills are held and the wonderful good that they are doing. Every year shows a marvelous increase in this popularity, and it is an established fact that in the communities where Beethoven's Pills are used the health and morality of the people are enhanced.

Every reader should know Beethoven's Pills—learn their power to keep the system in good order, preserve the vigor of glorious youth—to cheer and brighten old age. They regulate the bowels, help the liver, aid the kidneys, promote digestion and prevent the coming of serious sicknesses.

Thousands of men have been made sturdy and strong, thousands of women have been made healthy and happy through use of Beethoven's Pills. Anyone who does not know them is doing without one of the greatest known helps to health and happiness.

I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."

Mrs. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ill, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, latruncy, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

"Polly of the Circus" at Opera House Friday Night.

In "Polly of the Circus," Frederic Thompson's production, which comes to the opera house next Friday night, Miss Edith Taliaferro plays a young circus rider. All the life of the girl has been spent under the round top and in the circus car. The show with which she travels comes to a little middle Western town, and there all the scenes of the play are placed. The circus tents are pitched on the commons adjoining the village church and parsonage. That causes a scandal and the pillars of the church gather at the parsonage to protest to the minister against the sacrilege.

While they are there, the little circus rider is injured in a fall from her horse and is carried into the minister's home. A motley crew of clowns, riders, acrobats and canvasmen flock to the parsonage, where they are well received by the minister, much to the disgust of the members of the church. The minister agrees to care for the girl until she is well enough to return to the circus.

He soon learns that the little rider is an ignorant creature, and he begins instructing her. He weeds out her wonderful growth of circus slang and teaches her to read and write. She becomes contented with her new home—so much so that when she recovers she does not return to her little sawdust world.

Eleven months pass in this happy and innocent association, but by that time the tongue of scandal is wagging in the village, and the church deacons call upon the minister and demand that he send the girl away. He will not hear them, but they return and tell "Polly" that the minister's career is ruined if she stays with him. She resolves to go away.

The circus is again approaching the village, and the boss canvasman, who helped rear the little rider, comes and asks her to go back with him. She goes and the minister does not see her until a month later, when the tents are again pitched near the church. Then he hunts her out, going even into the circus ring at the height of the performance. Late that night, the circus winds its way out of the village, leaving the rider and the minister standing on the common gazing at the departing caravan.

COUNSEL MASSACRE TRIAL

He Appeared for the Relatives of the Jews — Russian Indicates Her Friendship for China.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 11.—M. Gillerson, a leading attorney of this city, was yesterday condemned to a year's imprisonment in a fortress, because of a speech which he delivered on June 22, 1908, at the trial of the participants in the Jewish massacre at Bialystok. Gillerson appeared at the trial as counsel for friends and relatives of the Jewish victims, of whom seventy-three were killed and eighty-two others wounded. The indictment against Gillerson charged that in his speech in court he had irrelevantly introduced arguments which incited the workmen against the government. The attorney at his trial was defended by representatives of several bar associations, which regarded the proceedings as an infringement upon the privileges of an attorney.

RUSSIA FRIEND OF CHINA.

Point Emphasized by Visit of Russian Minister to Manchuria.

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 11.—M. Kokoroff, Russian minister of finance, who came here supposedly for a conference with Prince Ito, left yesterday for St. Petersburg. He has not conferred with any representatives of Japan, and since the assassination of Prince Ito, has spent his time in visits to this city, Khabarovsk and Vladivostok, giving particular attention to the administration of the Manchurian railway and the study of how the commercial activity of the road might be strengthened.

The governor of Kirin province gave a dinner to the Russian minister on Monday, at which the host dwelt upon the friendliness and sincerity of the Russian-Chinese relations. At a dinner tendered him by the Russian colony on Tuesday M. Kokoroff expressed the conviction that the municipal self-administration in the province, which had already proved successful, would be still greater benefit to the commerce and culture of both the Russians and the Chinese.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 11.—Queen Helena of Italy is to become a member of the International Congress of Mothers, according to letters received from the Italian embassy at Washington by the board of managers of the National Congress of Mothers, at their session here today.

In expressing her desire to join in the work for the welfare of children of the world, Queen Helena declared her intention of sending a special envoy to the meeting of the organized mothers of the land, to be held at Denver next year. It is expected that other European sovereigns will follow suit.

The managers decided to hold the national congress at Denver June 16 to 20. Invitations have been received from Asheville, N. C., and from St. Louis to hold future meetings of the mothers in those cities.

MUST HAVE CAUSE.

Difficult to Secure Divorce in Oklahoma Now.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 11.—Taking exception to the granting of divorce on a trivial contention, and declaring that marriage ties "will not be dissolved except for grave and substantial cause," the supreme court yesterday made it difficult to get a divorce in Oklahoma. The opinion holds that when action is predicated on extreme cruelty there must be actual or imminent physical violence and that "incompatibility" is not sufficient basis for divorce.

TOLEDO BANKERS ARRESTED.

Toledo, O., Nov. 11.—Ernest Roberts and Burton E. Southard, former cashiers of the failed Dorr Street Savings bank, were arrested yesterday on the charge of perjury. In the complaint of a stockholder they are charged with having made false reports to the state auditor of the condition of the bank, which failed two years ago.
